Gratitude Game

FUN FOR THANKSGIVING!

Looking for a quick activity that anyone can participate in? Try the Gratitude Game! Gather some different colored items (sticks, crayons, M&Ms, etc.) Go around the table and pick one at random. Use the guide below (or make your own) to name something you are thankful for. This game can be modified as an icebreaker (get to know you questions), as a review game in a classroom (each color is a topic for a test), as a way to practice spelling or math facts, or as part of a bible study. Engaging activities get people talking, away from their phones, and making memories!
